3.3. Area Description
Mettukkadu is a thickly populated by the Scheduled Tribal (ST) community in Chennai, Tamil Nadu, India. It is 40 kilometers away from Chennai International Airport and comes under the Kancheepuram district of Tamil Nadu.

There are 60 Tribal families living together depending daily wages as casual laborers from near by cities and satellite towns. However, 60 % of them are practicing their ancient’s livelihood jobs like hunting for their daily bread from the surrounding forest. They get in to married life with their kith and kin even at their early ages soon after the brides attain puberty. 90 % of Tribal women discontinued their schooling/dropouts due to the existing socio-economical status.

Since elders and parents usually leave their homes early mornings for labor works, their children are forced to get ready by themselves to go to near by government primary and high schools of their own by walking 4 to 5 kilometers daily. School head masters and teachers are also trying to collect these children and finally failed to receive all of them at schools on regular basis. Face to face contact and interactions are almost nil between the parent and teachers. School uniforms and school materials are provided by the government are not in a quality conditions and children are also not keeping it in an expected manner. Daily attendance of these children is very poor.

Though the environment of their village is so good and greenish by nature surrounding by hills and forest but their individual house located places and surroundings are ugly and full of bushes and water captured surroundings and their houses are huts. Their houses are very small in height and width. Health conditions are very poor and unhygienic health practices.

They need to go to the near by town called Maraimalainagar which is located 6 to 8 kilometers away from their village for getting any goods or commodities and to go to government or private hospitals and health clinics even at their emergencies either day or night by walk. There is no transportation facility at all. None of them are having either two wheeler or any such facilities of their own till now. They do not have electricity facility in to their houses since they do not have so called Patta (registered document / ownership of land) for their living land. However, there are street light facilities available now and then and most of the time suffers by power cut / current cut problems and etc. They use their small huts to keep their belongings like cloths and vessels which does not have door at all. They used to sleep on the road side or outside of their huts for the entire night with their children and elderly people. Mosquito biting leads them to acquire contaminated diseases and to develop poor health conditions.

The above said are the geographical living conditions of the Tribal population at Mettukkatu village. In this scenario, PADASALAI is a registered Trust identified this Tribal village to empower them from the existing conditions.
