

COMPANY

Urbanity's nationally recognized company of professional dancers creates intimate and unconventional performances that both challenge and awe audiences.

Urbanity produces multiple shows each season, including an interpretation of Neruda's Book of Questions, an interactive performance in the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum and a collaboration with the Emmanuel Music Orchestra. Urbanity also works with frequent guest artists such as Larry Keigwin, Ellenore Scott and Pilobolus.

Additionally, Urbanity is home to dozens of other highly skilled dancers, including Urbanity Underground, a group of young professionals who still passionately pursue dance in their lives, and an active Apprentice program comprised of high school and college students.

SCHOOL

Urbanity's education engages hundreds of students. Offerings are available for all ages and include contemporary dance, hip-hop, improvisational, acrobatics and yoga.

"Our daughter has loved every minute."

Kid + Teen

These classes blend various styles, allowing students to build a strong and versatile technique. Students are also offered unique opportunities to perform across Boston.

Adult

Adult students of all experience levels are able to join classes by semester or stop by for a drop-in class. Classes range from contemporary to hip hop to yoga.

Baby

Programs for the youngest movers introduce musicality, motor and social skills, and dance technique at age appropriate levels, building a foundation for future studies.

Access and Opportunity

At the core of its operations is Urbanity's commitment to creating opportunities and making the arts accessible to all. As such, Urbanity invites all families to apply for financial assistance.

COMMUNITY

Urbanity recognizes dance as a motivating force. Reaching 500 students weekly, our community programs bring dance at no cost to people of all ages and backgrounds.

Movement Mends

Movement Mends offers classes and workshops in Boston to underserved populations, including those who have experienced incarceration, abuse or homelessness.

Urban and World Dance

This program, the largest of its kind within Boston Public Schools, brings direct instruction to youth through culturally relevant dance classes while exploring self-expression.

Dance with Parkinson's

This program invites individuals with Parkinson's to find joy in motion and music through a social and creative outlet. Participants are invited to let go of inhibitions while exploring movement, balance, coordination, and flexibility with the support of our professionally trained instructors.

"Because we push the limits in this class each week, I have much more confidence in my balance."
